教學目標與內容	Aim: This is primarily a writing course designed to help students develop the ability to express a number of important rhetorical functions. Students will be taught to develop a thesis, and to write effectively using this thesis as a controlling idea. Content: Rather than the mechanics of grammar and vocabulary, the course will focus on the characteristics of important forms of written expression and the process of writing required for these forms. This will include all aspects of the writing process from idea development, structuring of content, critical evaluation and self-editing. Students will be taught to develop a thesis, and to use this thesis to increase the effectiveness of their writing. By the end of the course students should have developed the ability to create a variety of forms of formal written English to an intermediate/ high intermediate level. Topics covered will include: description, requests, analysis, generalization, documentation procedures etc.
