Kainan University ☐ Fall Department of English Course
 x☐ Spring
Schedule

305030162,02

CRN	Course title	Instructor	Subject	grade	Credits	Hours per week
	Chinese：观光美ㄨ (F)	Romano	☑ required ☐ elective	年　　班	乙.	2
	English：tourism	Course prerequisites

Teaching goal and content	To let students find out about the tourist and the travel industry in our modern world. Throughout the course we will study the tourist industry since it's beginning up to our present time by searching through various websites such as wikipedia and other sources, thus giving students a general knowledge of this particular field of study.
Teaching Methods	x☐Lecture。　x ☐practical training。x☐discussion。 x☐question-and-answer。　☐others（　　　）。
Grading and evaluation criteria	midterm 50 %☐ ☐% 。final 50 % ☐ ☐% 。Class participation☐ ☐% 。 others（　　　　）grade☐☐% 。
Textbooks	(Author、Title、edition、publisher、publishing place、publishing year、from page to page in sequence)。 English for International Tourism　　Intermediate　　　w.w.w wikipedia.com Tourism. Peter Strutt Longman 2005　　ISBN-0-582-47983

Subject introduction (including outline and course schedule)：

This course is intended for students of English as a foreign language with a specific goal in mind: to let students be aware of modern tourism as well as traveling in the world today be it on expensive tours or simply backpacking in countries. Having traveled far and wide throughout Europe, North-America and Asia. I am most certain that my personnal contribution, while reading certain texts, could be of great help to students.

Students will have to submit before end of May a project on any European city or country describing which are the most important historical sites or museums one should go to.

  Course Outline: Tours Operators; Dealing with guests; Travel agencies; Hotel reservations; Seeing the sights

Pilgrimages, backpacking,   Asian and European most visited sites and places of general interest.